PROPOSALS

For Publishing, by Subscription,

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF

SIR WALTER SCOTT:

With a Biography: being the first American (and only) edition which contains the Author's last additions and illustrations, arranged upon their respective pages.

A COMPLETE and uniform edition of the various productions of the great 'Minstrel of the North,' is a desideratum with the American public. No library is complete without them, and no edition extant is sufficiently compact for such a repository; while the endless number of editions, without any uniformity in size, heretofore published, besides being exceedingly cumbrous, are far too voluminous and expensive to be within the reach of the great majority of readers. The undersigned therefore announce, that they have now in press, and will issue, an edition of the Works of Sir Walter Scott, which will embrace all his Poems, Novels, Histories, Biographies, and Fugitive Compositions, as well as the Biography and Private Correspondence, now in the course of publication in England, under the superintendence of Mr. Lockhart.

1st. In Parts: each Part embracing as much matter as is contained in two volumes of the present editions of the Waverley Novels, which will be put at the unprecedented low price of THIRTY SEVEN AND A HALF CENTS.

2d. Two parts will appear each month; but should the publishers find the work to meet the patronage they anticipate, FOUR PARTS will be issued monthly.

3d. The whole will be completed in seven volumes, or forty eight parts.

The paper on which the above is now printing, has been made expressly for the purpose; the present parts may, therefore, be considered a fair specimen, in every respect, of the whole work; but, should dissatisfaction arise with any subscriber, owing to an inferior article being offered, he may discontinue at any time, and have the amount paid returned.

Note.—The publication of the first volume is deferred until the receipt of the Biography, Private Correspondence, and the New Edition of the Author's Poetical Works, with 'contemporary criticism—various readings—and correspondence with some of the most eminent persons of the time when the Poems first appeared,' now in the course of publication in England.

Volume I will be ornamented with an excellent Portrait of Sir Walter Scott.

DAILY PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 18, 1833.

The election, in Tennessee, has at length closed, and Mr. Grundy has been re-elected. This result may be considered as a victory over the real Jackson party in that state. Mr. Grundy was violently assailed in the Republican, the organ of that party at Nashville. He was accused of favoring nullification and John C. Calhoun; and it was a serious charge against him, that he went with Colonel Hayne in the Debate on Foote's Resoliutions, when Mr. Webster gave this abominable doctrine its first "knock down."

It was true that Mr. Grundy opposed Mr. Webster on that occasion with all his might and ingenuity, but so did the whole Jackson party.—Even in this city of Pittsburgh, the Mercury denounced Mr. Webster's doctrine as aristocratical, and threatened to publish extracts from Col. Hayne's Speech, to expose the dangerous tendency of those doctrines. Subsequently, however, Gen. Jackson quarreled with John C. Calhoun, the father of nullification, and at once he discovered that this theory was an abominable heresy. All his hirelings, dependants, and sycophants, from Mr. Grundy down to the cheaper than dog cheap editor of the Mercury, made the wonderful discovery that "sovereign States had no right to nullify an act of Congress."—All the arguments and eloquence of Mr. Webster, upon this subject, were unavailing, but a wink from the Kitchen Cabinet carried full conviction to all the servile sycophants who wear the collar.

Mr. Grundy, however, was still suspected of a leaning towards Mr. Calhoun, and therefore was denounced, to make room for Mr. Eaton. The denunciation, however, was ineffectual, and Mr. Grundy is, once more, the Senator from Tennessee.

The following extract of a letter, from a lady who had traveled to Blairsville, by the Canal, on her way to the eastward, with her family, will be interesting to many of our readers; and exhibits, pretty clearly, the conveniences which that mode of traveling affords for families:

"PACKET BOAT, Blairsville, Oct. 8.

"We arrived here in 26 hours: all delighted with this, to us, new mode of traveling: the children quite at their ease, and amused with every thing. —I was agreeably disappointed in passing the locks, and not at all alarmed, as I expected to be: we slept when we pleased, and without any apprehensions of loose linch pins, precipices, and wild horses. The captain is very kind and obliging. It rained very hard last night, but we were snug, and only got on the faster as the Canal filled with water. To day it was pleasant: we enjoyed the scenery, and passed many interesting objects.—The tunnel came upon us by surprize—altogether we were much gratified: our fellow passengers were very agreeable: two stages run daily between this and Holidaysburgh, where we expect to arrive to morrow, at 5 o'clock, P. M., and in time for the packet boat."

From the Louisville Herald.

'The long agony is over.' Grundy, on the 55th ballot, was elected Senator in Congress from the State of Tennessee. We have no papers from Nashville this morning. This information we derive from a gentleman who left there on Wednesday morning. He does not recollect the precise state of the vote; Mr. Grundy, however, on the last ballot received thirty three votes—Mr. Eaton, 20. This has been a very severe contest; at the last session of the legislature there were upwards of forty ballotings.

☞Since the above was in type, we received the Nashville Banner, of the 8th, from which we annex the following particulars:

Election of Senator.—On Monday, the 7th inst., the two Houses met in the Representative Hall, and balloted fourteen times, (from the 28th to the 41st time inclusive) without making an election.

On Tuesday, 8th instant, at 10 o'clock, A. M., the two Houses met, and balloted eight times, the result of which is below. After the forty third balloting had been given, Mr. Gordon, of the House of Representatives, rose, and formally nominated the Hon. John Bell, as a candidate.

	43	44	45	46	47	48
Grundy, -	26	26	28	29	30	29
Foster, -	21	15	10	5	2	3
Eaton, -	13	10	5	7	5	7
Bell, - -	-	9	16	19	23	21

Tuesday, half past 5 o'clock, P. M.—Hon. FELIX GRUNDY, has just been re-elected Senator in Congress, on the 55th balloting. The final vote stood—for Grundy, 33; Eaton, 18; Foster, 9.

We are pleased to hear that the Transportation on our Canals has, for the few past weeks, been uninterrupted by breaches or other accident. We have seen letters from Pittsburgh, speaking highly of the exertions of our old friend David Leech, whose line is transporting merchandise from this city and delivering it in Pittsburgh, in eleven and twelve days, which is the greatest despatch that can be attained, until the completion of the rail road across the mountains, which, we are told, will be done at an early date.

Mr. Leech has contracted to deliver the engines at the different stations, to accomplish which he has to cut several roads; and while we are glad the contract is in such good hands, we congratulate our fellow citizens upon the prospect they have of ere long possessing an uninterrupted chain of Canal Navigation to the "Far West," as cannot be exceeded, if equalled, by any sister State.—Penn. Inquirer.

Concerning the removal of the deposits, Major Jack Downing thus writes to the editor of the Portland Courier:

"Mr. Kendle is the master feller to hang on that I ever see; he's equal to the tooth ache. And he talked and palavered with the President, till he finally brought him over, and then the President put his foot down and said the deposits should be removed whether or no. And then botheration was to see whould move 'em. The President told Mr. Duane to do it; but he said his conscience would'nt let him. Mr.Taney tried it, and found his conscience went easy enough, so Mr. Duane packed up and went home to Philadelphia. We were all dreadful sorry to lose Mr. Duane, for he was a nice man as any you will see in a thousand. It's a pity he had such a stiff conscience."

The grandson of the Empress Josephine, the Duke of Leuchtenberg, will, most probably, become the husband of the young Queen of Portugal. His father, the celebrated Eugene Beauharnois, married a Bavarian Princess. The young Duke will go to Lisbon with Donna Maria.—Philadelphia Dai. Chron.

From the American Sentinel.

Some days ago, we received the published address of Virgil Maxey, Esq., delivered last month before the Phi Beta Kappa Society of the Brown University; and have had not only no reason to be displeased with such parts of its contents as we have read, but every reason to be perfectly satisfied with the general spirit of the remarks, and the soundness of the conclusions made—although a few of them are not perfectly in coincidence with some of the prevailing tenets of political economy. Yet that does not prove them to be inaccurate, nor the dissemination of them improper.

We subjoin an extract from the former part of the discourse, as a tolerable specimen of its style and tenor.

"By means of machinery, the people of London are supplied daily with twenty nine millions gallons of water, at an expense of about one penny for a hundred gallons. To furnish this quantity by hand, without the aid of machinery, would require the labor of eight hundred thousand able bodied men—more than four times as many as London contains—at an expense equal to the whole revenue of the United Kingdom.

Before the inventions of Sir Richard Arkwright, fifty thousand people only were employed in manufacturing about two million pounds of cotton.—When those inventions were introduced, the apprehension was entertained that it would take employment from the laboring class. Instead of that being the case, however, the cotton manufacture in England now gives employment, directly or indirectly, to more than two millions of people, requires an importation of three hundred millions pounds of cotton, and creates for export, after deducting its home consumption, a value of 80 millions of dollars. It was calculated, says Lord Brougham, that the spinning machinery of Lancashire county alone produced, in 1825, as much yarn as would have required twenty one million three hundred and twenty thousand persons to produce with the distaff and spindle; a number almost equal to the whole population of Great Britain. The man is now living who first introduced into the United States the machinery for spinning cotton, one hundred millions pounds of which are now annually manufactured in the United States, a greater quantity than was manufactured in Great Britain seventeen years ago. The town of Lowell, in Massachusetts, in which not a pound was manufactured in 1823, now requires fourteen millions pounds of cotton per annum, a much larger quantity than the whole manufacture of the United Kingdom, fifty years ago.

Herodotus tells us, that the great pyramid of Egypt cost the labor of a hundred thousand men for twenty years, in its construction alone; without counting those who prepared and collected the materials. It has been calculated, says Lord Brougham, that the steam engines of England, worked by thirty six thousand men, would raise the same quantity of stone from the quarry, and elevate them to the same height as the great pyramid in the short time of eighteen hours.

It is computed that the productive power of G. Britain and the United States, with the aid of machinery, is equal to that of the whole human race without it.

Such are the triumphs of science and art. Such the contest between the poor, naked, wandering savage, "trembling before the elements, which in terror he adores, depending on his solitary, unaided exertion for food, for arms, for raiment, and shelter; and the civilized man, strong in science and the resources of society." Armed with these, he fells, the forest,subdues the teeming earth, rears the comfortable dwelling or gorgeous palace, sends roads through the hitherto impenetrable glen and over the precipitous mountain, clears out rivers for navigation, or cuts new channels for their waters, goes abroad on the ocean, and guiding his course by the shifting winds, mixes the whitening sail of his enterprize with the clouds of every clime; or subjecting to his control a power that defies both wind and tide, presses directly to his object, with a rapidity hitherto unknown; or transferring the tremendous energies of steam to the land, he flies through space with a velocity which seems to annihilate both time and distance. Aided by science, he rises up into the heavens, measures the magnitude of the glorious sun, traces the laws of his planets, wheeling in splendor round him, attended by their shining trains of obedient satellites, pursues with more than imagination's speed the blazing comet into the fields of boundless space, or turning back to the rolling globe, to which he belongs, plunges into its hidden recesses, lays open its mineral wealth, draws forth the glittering silver and gold, and the still more precious iron and coal; or merging thence, he arms himself with the power of the elements, "makes fire and air and earth and water his ministering servants, and standing as it were on the confines of nature, seems, as by a magic talisman, to give energy and life to the brute elements of matter."

Corrupting Unusual Words.—It is Dugald Stewart who remarks, "that ideas are often conveyed to the mind through the senses by very meagre and mutilated signs." Thus a person who reads rapidly does not, most probably, see more than a very small portion of the letters, or even of the words, whose meaning, at a glance, he apprehends; this is proved by the pains required to be taken to analyze the orthography of any new or unusual term when it occurs. A steam boat, on Loch Lomond, bore the classic name of Euphrosyne, which the Highlanders regularly corrupted into the Hugh Fraser. A very pious puritan, who kept an inn, in Holborn, in Cromwell's time, put as a motto to his sign, "God encompasseth us."—In the course of years this sign became obliterated; and when it came to be renewed, from the treacherous recollections of those amongst whom its designation was remembered, it was entitled "The Goat and Compasses," a blazonry being given to suit the motto. In Fifeshire there is a farm, which, from standing on the limits of the celebrated ground of the boar hunt, near St. Andrews, received the latin appellation of April Cursus. This, in process of time, was first corrupted into Upper Curus, and then, to find a counterpart to its new name, the next farm further down the valley was called Nether Curus. A beautiful villa, near Loch Lomond, was named, by its traveled possessor, "Belle Retiro." The country people called it "Bull-rutter." Perhaps the most thorough transmutation of a Roman expression of any we possess, if the classic antiquary be correct, is that of Hilariter Celariter, into our Scotch helter skelter. A celebrated philosopher once received a note from his Italian valet, addressed "Somfridavy." It may be necessary to explain, that it was meant for Sir Humphrey Davy.—Dundee Constitutional.

CASE OF JURISDICTION.

The Fall Term of the Circuit Court, for the county of St. Clair, (his Honor, William I. Adair, presiding) closed its session on Thursday evening last. The case of Scott Mankiller, a Cherokee Indian, who was indicted for the murder of his brother, Buck Mankiller, excited considerable interest, both from the novelty of the proceedings, and the importance of the case decided. John Ridge, a native, of good mind and fine intelligence, being sworn, read and interpreted the indictment to the accused, upon his arraignment, who thereupon being asked, whether guilty or not guilty, replied as previously instructed, that he would respond through his counsel. Whereupon a plea was filed to the jurisdiction of the court—stating in substance, that the said Scott Mankiller was a native of the Cherokee nation of Indians—that the offence charged was committed in that nation—that he was amenable to the laws thereof, and not subject to the jurisdiction of the tribunal before which he was then arraigned. The solicitor put in a special replication, to the effect that the offence was committed within the constitutional limits of the State of Alabama, and in that part of the so called Cherokee nation, which had been attached to, and made part of the county of St. Clair.

In the argument, two points were taken for the prisoner—1st. That the State of Alabama had no right to extend its jurisdiction over the Indian nations within its chartered limits—and 2d, conceding the right, the Legislature did not embrace the case under consideration.

We shall not attempt to give even a synopsis of the course of the argument. The treaties of the United States with the Cherokees, and the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of the Missionaries, were adverted to, as sustaining the first position—and the terms of the act of the Legislature, extending the jurisdiction of the State over the Indians, were conceived to be decisive of the second.

On behalf of the State, it was contended, that the jurisdiction of the State was contemporaneous with its existence, and coextensive with its chartered limits—attaching as much to one part of its Territory as to another—that the act extending its jurisdiction was supererogatory—extra legislative—and merely notified the people of the Districts annexed, that the power of the State, theretofore in obeyance, was in action among them, and complied with that provision of the Constitution which declares, that in all criminal prosecutions, the accused has a right to a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the county or district, in which the offence shall have been committed.

The court sustained the plea to the jurisdiction, and discharged the defendant. The writer was not present when the opinion was delivered, but understood it to be limited to the first point—and founded upon the fact that Alabama had become a member of the Union, with a full knowledge of the treaties then subsisting between the U. States and the Cherokee Indians—that they were the Supreme law of the land, and guarantied in terms or by implication, the right of soil and jurisdiction, and that the State, in extending the laws over the Indians, had transcended its constitutional powers.

One of our last English papers contains some notice of the celebration of the anniversary of Walter Scott's birth day in Edinburgh. Among other marks of respect paid to his memory, a club, lately established in that city, under the title of "Sons of the Great Unknown," dined together, it having been previously arranged that each member should assume on the occasion some character from the Waverly Novels. "The chair," says the Edinburgh Evening Post, was filled by Lovel, supported by Henry Bertram and Sir Kenneth of Scotland, facing whom, as croupier, sat Lecksley, the bold outlaw of Sherwood Forest, most characteristically attended by Richard Coeur de Lion and Friar Tuck, who declared the mountain dew of Scotland far superior to the Well of St. Dunstan. During the evening, which was spent with the greatest hilarity, several original recitations and songs were given, appropriate to the occasion, and the meeting separated in the most becoming manner."—N. Y. Post.

Wooden Clocks.—The versatile genius peculiar to the Yankees is found in no place under the sun, so widely spread as in the steady land of Connecticut.—Here the inventive spirit which first ushered wooden clocks into existence saw the light, and here the wheels of this business have continued to revolve with accelerated speed until the present day. In the town of Plymouth alone, we are informed, not less than fifteen thousand wooded clocks are made annually, and one individual in that town has acquired a fortune of nearly $200,000 by this business. One day last week, thirty handsome wagons, with two horses each, started from Plymouth, for one of the southern cities, on a clock peddling excursion. About three hundred wooden time keepers, all warranted to go, were shipped recently for Baltimore to Richmond, where these wagons are to assemble, load up, and disperse over the southern country. When their supply is exhausted, they resort to the city depot, and when that is out, Connecticut manufactories replenish it again. The original cost of these wooded vessels, is about $5,00, and the retail price at the south, when made, like Peter Pindar's razors, to sell, is $20,00. There are not less than six towns in Connecticut, all extensively engaged in this kind of business. Unitedly, they make not far from fifty thousand every year, and yet the demand is still unsupplied.—Northampton Cour.

Fertility of Western New York.—In an article commenting upon the abundance of the harvest, the Onondaga Standard asks—What will the farmers down east say, when we inform them we can name individuals in this country, who had harvested the present season 1,500, 1,800, and, in one instance, 3,000 bushels of wheat? If our friends of Onondaga make these matters the subject of such exultation, we may ask, and we do it with no disposition to undervalue the blessings of our neighbors, what must the farmers down east say, when we inform them that we can name individuals in Livingston county, who have harvested the present season, more than 6,000 bushels each; aye, and in one instance more than 4,000 bushels have been cut from 100 acres of land; which, without the intermission of a single year in 25, has been in crop? The county of Livingston contains twelve towns, which will this year market her million bushels of wheat.—Livingston Journal.

The following singular paragraph, from the London Athenæum, may afford food for conversational gossip among our political quidnuncs.

"Letters from Paris make mention of a work about to appear there, which it is expected will create no little bustle in the cabinet of Louis Philippe. When the Duchess of Berri was apprehended, she was so well pleased with the courtesy of Gen. Dermencourt, who had commanded in La Vendee, that she intrusted to him the whole of her papers. These he refused to deliver up to the government; but now, in consequence of some disagreement, he is about to publish them under the title of "La Vendee et Madame." He has resolved, it is said, to state, without reserve, all he knows of the intrigues that were carried on; and among the documents will be a letter from one of the most influential Ministers of Louis Philippe to the Duchess, wherein he offers to establish her son on the throne, upon condition that the office of Constable of France be revived, and given to him; and one from another Minister, apprizing her that her place of concealment was known, and directing her to remove for Thurth, or she would be arrested."

From the Richmond (Virginia) Times.

REGAL CONDESCENSION.

[The Washington Globe declares "that a difference of opinion has prevailed between the President and some members of his cabinet," relative to the removal of the deposits; but that the President has caused it to be understood that these proceedings are not to be considered as a Cabinet measure, but one upon which the members MAY conscientiously differ from the President and each other!"]

Oh, Andrew Jackson, Andrew Jackson!
(Name that sounds in verse divine)
You have laid a grievous tax on
This poor doggrel muse of mine.
And to add one humble feather
To the bonnet of thy fame,
I have strung some rhymes together
Just to please the silly dames.

Since those golden days of old
In dark history's tomes enroll'd,
When some generous Prince forgave
Honest speech in lowly slave,
Was there ever yet made mention
Of such boundless condescension
As King Andrew showed of late
To his Officers of State?

He who, born but to command,*
Rules, by right divine, our land—
He who is, by one consent,
Hailed alone, the Government,†
Who, by magic concentration,
In himself is this great nation—
Mighty lord of pay and place,
To his slaves is full of grace.

As the serpent, famed of yore,
Swallowed all his snaky brothers,
So great Andrew's triple power
Every other power smothers.

Musty laws his wisdom needs not;
Other people's thoughts he heeds not:
Congress, Courts, and Constitution—
Fertile sources of pollution—
He in phrases firm but civil,
Promptly pitches to the devil,
Proving thus, a staunch old Roman,
Which is now denied by no man—
Though the point is somewhat serious
Whether he's Nero or Tiberius.

Such the man, who late cut short all
Doubts that he must be immortal,
By causing to be understood
That men who, for the public good,
Have been assembled round the throne,
May have opinions of their own,
In case they don't kick up a riot,
But hold their thoughts entirely quiet,
Like Paddy's bird, from converse shrinking,
Though keeping up a constant thinking.

Yes, they may safely disagree
From the great fee faw fum's decree,
When their advice he does not ask,
And they are in the Palace met
To hear the monarch read the task
Taught by the Kitchen Cabinet.

Yet, though thus far this act of grace
Gives conscience to men in place,
Still, they must clearly understand
That if their counsel he command
On matters suiting their ability,
Of minor import and utility,
Cabinet measures and so forth,
Of needful form, but little worth,
They must advise, but their opinions,
As should be those of pliant minions,
Must square with his, and echo, truly,
His will, or be marked down unruly:
'Tis clearly their official duty—
Partaking of the victor's spoils,
Enjoying their full share of booty—
In aiding Andrew's patriot toils,
Freely to think just as he wishes;
Or yield, at once, the loaves and fishes.

Thus, when Duane, poor silly elf,
Presumed on thinking for himself,
To punish such unseemly capers,
He quickly got his walking papers,
Andrew had power greatly lacked, or he
Was right to punish the refractory:‡
And, as was all arranged before,
As stubborn Duane left the door,
Taney—at once discreet and wary—
Was, by the "all hail," made Secretary.

Behold in this great act combined
The Hero's soul, the Statesman's mind.
Mildest of Despots! Jackson's name
Engrosses the whole nation's fame.
He teaches common men how vain
The plodding jurist's toil and pain—
The flummery of legislation,
When one man represent's the nation,
Who needs no law his course to guide,
And is above all law beside.
Greatest of monarchs! we adore thee—
Both law and gospel flee before thee:
Louis Quatorze, to us 'tis plain,
Dreamed of thy glorious after reign,
And copying what in thee he saw
Nobly exclaimed l'etat c'est moi!

Castor Oil for Lamps.—In the thirteenth volume of the American Farmer, page 207, we mentioned a discovery, by Mr. Isaac Smith, of Eastville, Northampton county, Va., which enabled him to render castor oil equal to the best sperm, for burning in lamps. We mentioned, also, that it was Mr. Smith's intention to take out a patent for his valuable improvement. This, however, he has never done, and his son, Mr. Francis H. Smith, of this city, called at our office, a day or two ago, and gave us permission to make known, for the benefit of the public, his father's method of preparing the oil, which is merely mixing with it spirits of turpentine, with which it readily combines, in the proportion of one of the latter to four of the oil. The simplicity of this manner of preparing it, enhances the value of the commodity very considerably.

As to the excellence of this composition, for the purpose of lighting rooms, there can be but one opinion by all who have tried it.

It is, at least, equal to the best sperm. we ever saw in its quality of combustion, and in its appearance decidedly superior. We are now writing by a lamp filled with it, and a finer light we never saw. The lamp has been burning three hours, and there is not the slightest appearance of crust on the wick, and on extinguishing the flame there is no fire remaining in the wick, as is generally the case with sperm. oil, except of the very best quality—indeed, in the extinguishment and in the relighting of the lamp of this oil there is a strong similarity to that of a gas light. Mr. F. H. Smith has used this mixture in his house these five years, and prefers it decidedly to the best sperm. It emits, he says, a clearer and more powerful light, and burns somewhat longer than sperm., and never congeals in the coldest weather. The present relative prices of the castor and sperm. oil, offer no inducement to those on the sea board to substitute the former for the latter; but to our brethren of the west the subject promises to be of much importance, as rendering them still further independent of foreign supplies for the necessaries and comforts of life. The compound is likewise much cheaper to them, in as much as a double freight is saved—that on sperm. oil from the sea board, and on castor oil, the abundant product of their fields, to a distant market.—Balt. Amer. Farmer.

Geology.—It is well known that the bones of animals occur in countries where animals of the same species now no longer exist. One mode of accounting for this fact, given by M. Cuvier, appears so natural that we shall quote his own words: "For example, let us suppose that a great irruption of the sea shall now cover the continent of New Holland with a mass of sand, or other debris: the bodies of kangaroos, wombats, dasyuri, peramels, flying phalangistæ, echidnæ, and ornithorynchi, will be buried under it, and it will entirely destroy every species of these genera, since none of them now exist in other countries. Let this same revolution dry up the sea which covers the numerous straits between New Holland and the continent of Asia; it will open a way for the elephant, the rhinoceros, the buffalo, the horse, the camel, the tiger, and all other Asiatic quadrupeds, who will people a country where they have been hitherto unknown. A naturalist afterwards living among them, and by chance searching into the depths of the soil on which this new nature lives, will find the remains of beings wholly different.—That which New Holland would be, in the above case, Europe, Siberia, and a great part of America, are now; and, perhaps, when other countries, and New Holland, itself, shall be examined, we shall find that they have undergone similar revolutions. I could almost say, a mutual exchange of productions; for, carrying the supposition still further, after this transportation of Asiatic animals into New Holland, let us imagine a second revolution, which shall destroy Asia, their primitive country, those who afterwards see them in New Holland, their second country, will be as embarrassed to know whence they came, as we can be now to find the origin of our own."—Athenæum.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscribers, Trustees of the New Philadelphia Society, at Phillipsburgh, Beaver county, Pennsylvania, offer for sale the following property, to wit:

1	tract of land	containing	330 acres
1	do	do	330
1	do	do	67
1	do	do	7
1	do	do	40
other lots, containing about			6

The above lands lie in one body, fronting about two miles upon the Ohio river—immediately opposite the mouth of Big Beaver creek, and the Beaver Division of the Pennsylvania Canal. The land is rich, and a part of it under a high state of cultivation—its location pleasant and healthy. The improvements upon the same are valuable, including the town of Phillipsburgh, late the residence of Count Leon, and the New Philadelphia Society. The town contains about 40 Dwelling Houses, now in order; some of them brick houses and two stories high. A large and spacious Hotel, a Store house, Church, a number of Shops, for mechanics, Stables, Barns, and other out houses. Also, two large new buildings, lately erected, but not yet finished, one of brick, the other of frame (the latter suitable for a manufactory) a very extensive public garden, and also fruit trees of various kinds. The property has also attached to it the right of a ferry across the Ohio, which is valuable, and becoming more so every day.

The above property is situated in the midst of a wealthy and prosperous country, distant about 28 miles below Pittsburgh, and one mile from Beaver, the seat of justice for Beaver county—and having a view for many miles up and down the Ohio, and of the country to a great distance around.

The subscribers are confident in saying that few situations could be found, presenting greater facilities to the farmer, mechanic, the manufacturer, and others—a soil rich and productive—the neighborhood abounding in coal—well timbered and watered, and, by means of the Pennsylvania Canal, and steamboat navigation, a cheap and ready conveyance to market, and a communication with other places is ensured.

The property is susceptible of divisions into farms, or for the location of new towns, or for the extension of the present one.

Should it not be sold on or before the first day of January next, it will then be offered at public sale, upon the premises, to the highest and best bidder.

It will be sold in a body, or in parcels, to suit purchasers.

Terms of sale will be reasonable.

Information can be had by enquiring of the subscribers, two of whom live in the neighborhood, and one on the premises.

PERIODICALS.

AMERICAN RAILROAD JOURNAL, and Advocate of Internal Improvements, which is designed as a repository of the accounts of the rise and progress of numerous works of Internal Improvement, in the United States particularly, and in other parts of the world generally. The work is published weekly, and forms a large octavo volume each year, of 832 pages of 3 columns each, for $3 per annum, in advance.

New York Farmer, and American Gardener's Magazine. This work is designed for the agriculturist, and will be found to contain much, both interesting and profitable, to those who cultivate the soil as a business, or merely a garden for amusement. Published in monthly parts of 32 large octavo pages, with three columns each, at $3 per annum, in advance.

Mechanics' Magazine, and Register of Improvements and Inventions. To the Mechanics of the United States—In this populous and enlightened country, almost every description of persons can obtain knowledge and amusement connected with their peculiar pursuits, through the medium of the Journal or Magazine, especially devoted to their interests. The Theologian, the Farmer, the Philosopher, the Sportsman, and even the Plough Boy, has each his Journal, where he can find a record of the passing events of the day, connected with his peculiar avocations and recreations. Hitherto, the Mechanics (who form a large and most important portion of the community) have had no Journal, to which they could turn, with the certainty of finding that information they desire, no periodical of which they could say: 'This is ours, and for us.' In the hope that the attempt to supply such a want at a price so reasonable as to be within the reach of all, will meet with your active support, the subscriber proposes to publish, on the first day of each month, a Mechanics' Magazine. It will contain a well digested selection of the most useful and interesting articles in the London Mechanics' Magazine, London Register of Arts and Sciences, Repertory of Inventions, Library of Useful Knowledge, Journal of the Franklin Institute, and other works, connected with the arts and manufactures, published in this country and in Europe, accompanied with numerous and well executed Engravings. Its pages will be open for the communications of all, and especially for those of the practical artisan, to whose interest it will be particularly devoted. The Mechanics' Magazine will contain, also, a due portion of the occurrences of the month, Scientific and Literary Reviews of Books, Anecdotes, Economical Receipts, Reports of the state of Mechanics' Institutions, and other Scientific Societies in this state and other countries. To be published monthly. Each succeeding number will contain 64 pages, handsomely printed, and stitched in a neat cover. Six numbers will form a volume, for which an index and title page will be supplied, and also a Portrait of some distinguished Mechanic, as a Frontispiece. Terms, $3 per annum, in advance.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S

☞ WELCH MEDICAMENTUM. ☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn, It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness, Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately; inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit; purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE,

From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.

Utica, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

ANTI-DYSPEPTIC ELIXER.

ONE of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

The basis of this Elixer is vegetables, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour state of the stomach, the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristaltic motion of the intestines is increased, and the costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixer is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state. Not the least danger is to be apprehended from exposure to cold, while under the use of this medicine, nor will it interrupt necessary employment of the patient a single hour.

☞ A number of cases of cures performed by the Anti-Dyspeptic Elixer in the vicinity of Pittsburgh can be given.

COMPOUND SYRUP OF LIVERWORT,

A SAFE and Valuable Medicine for Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Consumption, and Liver Complaints.

Most of the medicines made use of for the above diseases are of a stimulating nature, composed generally of Resins and Balsams, in alcoholic solutions, which, although sometimes giving temporary relief, in almost every instance where they are freely used, aggravate the disease, and reduce the strength of the patient.

This article possesses superior advantages over these preparations, its action being of a tonic, invigorating and strengthening nature, thus overcoming the disease by promoting expectoration, and gradually increasing the strength of the patient, and thus, without being attended with any unpleasant effects: it also agrees with the stomach, in a cases, and is a pleasant medicine to take.

As it is presumed that no one will purchase without seeing the machine at work, a description of it is deemed unnecessary. Should any person, however, wish to purchase, and find it inconvenient to visit the places where it is in operation, a machine will be furnished, warranted to plane, tongue and groove, and bring to an exact width and thickness, a white pine board of 12 feet long, and of any width from 1 to 14 inches, in one minute and ten seconds, or an oak board of the same dimensions in 2 minutes and 10 seconds. Machines may be seen at work in the cities of New Orleans, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and others at the south and east, at Wheeling, Virginia, and at the saw mill of Messrs. Irwin & Herron, in this city.

Persons desiring to purchase will have the certificates of scientific and practical men who have seen it at work, in the different places in which it has been put up, forwarded to them. They give their opinion as to the great value of the invention, state the time they have seen boards dressed by this machine, and describe the quality of the work as compared with that performed by hand labor.

TYPE FOUNDRY.

HAVING purchased of Mr. Richard Ronaldson, his long established and very extensive Type Foundry, the subscribers have formed a co-partnership for the purpose of continuing said business, and for the convenience of their friends and patrons, have removed their establishment to a more central part of the city. As it is their intention to keep on hand a good assortment of the best type, and to make such additions and improvements as the taste of the trade and the wants of the country require, they flatter themselves that this establishment will merit a large share of patronage. They have now several founts on hand, which can be furnished at a few hours' notice, and are prepared to make founts of all weights and sizes, from Pearl to 22 lines Pica, including a variety of Ornamental Letter. Their assortment of Cuts, Dashes, Brass Rule, and other Ornaments, will be found to be very extensive, of which specimens will be forwarded to Printers as soon as they can be prepared.

Printing Presses of every description, Printing Ink of the most approved qualities, Composing Sticks, Brass and Common Galleys, Chases, Imposing Stones, Cases, Paper and Press Boards, Standing Presses, Furniture, together with a complete assortment of all articles used in a Printing Office, will be kept constantly on hand.

Small founts, suitable for Book Binders, in great variety, may be had when called for.

Orders from all parts in the Union will be promptly and most carefully attended to, and particularly in supplying sorts for all founts furnished by their predecessors, Binny & Ronaldson, and Richard Ronaldson.
